Editorial: A New Hope

In Star Wars: The Empire Strikes Back, the spirit of Jedi-Master Obi-Wan Kenobi says, in referring to young Luke Skywalker, "That boy is our last hope." Grand Master Yoda, in his near-infinite wisdom replies, "No...there is another." There is, then, somewhere in the vast reaches of the galaxy, a new hope to save the rebellion. Here on Earth, something very similar just happened to Non-Sport Update.

Non-Sport Update (NSU) has been published continuously since 1990 under the auspices of the Toser family: Roxanne, Marlin and Harris. As a group, the Tosers readily admit the magazine was more a labor of love than anything else. That love was centered on the card collecting hobby, the community of collectors that continue to keep it viable, and the desire to provide valuable information and interesting reads to that community. It was the Tosers who gave the magazine its heart; keeping it beating strong these many years. Sooner or later all things must change and the Toser team realized now was the right time for them to set a different course and leave the piloting of their beloved publication to someone else. The team won't sail into the cardboard sunset completely, though, as the three do plan on continuing the twice-yearly Philly Non-Sport Show while Harris alone will remain with NSU for the foreseeable future. We wish the Tosers a tall ship and a star to steer her by.

So, is that it for Non-Sport Update? Will NSU now wither and die like so many other non-sport related mags have done over the past decades? Not on your card-collecting life! The magazine has been bought, lock, stock, and protective poly-bagged wrapping by Beckett Media LLC, a privately-held company well-versed in the art of reporting on the sundry facets of collecting ephemera.

Founded in 1984, Beckett Media is the leading publisher of sports and specialty market collectible platforms in the U.S. The company has stated its desire to keep the core content of Non-Sport Update and not make change for change's sake. The company is serious about the non-sport market and NSU's readers. Keeping Harris aboard for the foreseeable future seems to suggest that Beckett's plan is to grow NSU while keeping one of the one of original architects aboard.

"Bringing Harris along was one of the easiest decisions made throughout the entire transfer process," says Beckett Editorial Director Mike Payne.

Growth in terms of readership could come sooner rather than later. Beckett products are distributed via a unique channel of more than 3,500 independent hobby accounts. In addition, Beckett magazines and books are distributed through such retailers as Barnes and Noble, Toys R Us, Wal-Mart, Target, Kroger, Meijer's, independent hobby shops, and hundreds of national and regional grocery, drug and convenience store chains. Beckett books and magazines also are available from online booksellers such as barnesandnoble.com and amazon.com. The company also operates Beckett Grading Services, a leading third-party professional card grading service whose business includes sports and non-sports cards.

And now, Beckett is adding Non-Sport Update to its stable of trusted and informative collectibles magazines. Will morphing from a family-owned business to a corporate one change NSU? In some ways, perhaps, but the magazine's goal will remain the same as it has always been, and that is to provide you, the loyal non-sports enthusiast, with the best and most enlightening and entertaining magazine in the hobby. Whether you are a non-sport newbie, a trading card dealer, or a seasoned pro, our Take Along Price Guide will remain indispensable, our columns will keep you up-to-date on the beat of the hobby, and our articles will carry on with exclusive manufacturer interviews and background information you will find nowhere else.

While this is a new beginning of sorts, we will never forget to cherish the cards we all grew up with and to celebrate the people who continue to make this hobby great.

Non-Sport Notes

Welcome to the new Non-Sport Update magazine! For us at Beckett Media, it's an exciting time. We hope that you share some of the same excitement as we transition into a new era for this great magazine.

But talk about pressure and a tough act to follow! This page has been reserved for Roxanne Toser from the beginning. Well, the second issue to be exact when Notes debuted with Roxanne and original NSU editor, Chris Benjamin co-authoring. It has been all Roxanne for more than 20 years, though. So I've got my work cut out for me.

First off, I'd be remiss not to thank her, Marlin and Harris. The Tosers have done a tremendous amount for the hobby over the years (and will continue to do so). And I know that's an understatement. It's one of those things that I cannot justly convey in such a small space like this. They are ambassadors to the non-sport side of the hobby and their reach goes far beyond the pages of this magazine.

They have fostered a community that I have had the privilege of being a part of for some time. Back in 2005, along with Alan Biegel, they welcomed me into the NSU family. I started as a writer going from issue to issue beginning with Topps' Batman Begins. Eventually it became a regular gig with the Cards Online column, which I maintained until only a few issues ago. This experience helped prepare me for what would become a full-time career where I now to write about the hobby everyday. For that, I cannot express enough gratitude. And I am sure many of you have experiences with the family as well, whether it's through the magazine, shows, auctions or on even more personal levels. So once again, thank you Roxanne, Marlin and Harris! So many of us are grateful for all you've done on so many levels.

This is a big change for Non-Sport Update. But it might not be as drastic as you think. Our goal is to bring the best of what the magazine already has to offer combined with Beckett Media's strengths. The result? Something we hope will become even better with a bigger reach and give you access to the non-sport news and resources you need wherever you are and however you need them.

Will there be changes? The fact that someone named Ryan is writing this column instead of Roxanne means that yes, not all is the same. You might notice some other differences in design and layouts, but the main focus is on providing the best possible content.

Rest assured, all of us working on this magazine are big fans both of the publication and non-sport cards. We're collectors just like you and are passionate about the hobby. We have a tremendous amount of respect for this magazine, its legacy and you, the reader. We have a love for trading cards and believe that the non-sport and entertainment side not only has tons to offer in the way of variety, history and excitement, but we think it has lots of room to grow as well.

Something I have always admired about the Tosers and what they started with Non-Sport Update is the sense of community they fostered. That's something we definitely want to continue. So if you have any questions about what we're doing, comments, Beckett Media the company, concerns, or collecting in general, please don't hesitate to drop me an email at rcracknell@beckett.com. I'd be happy to hear from you or help you in any way I can.

So welcome to a new era for Non-Sport Update and thank you for embarking on the journey with us. Thank you also for your love of collecting and for continuing to support this great magazine.

The first Beckett Media issue includes two other firsts for Non-Sport Update—our very first Doctor Who cover and the first time NSU has had two different regular covers (of course we've had many variant covers but this time, two regular covers). We knew who to call to make a Ghostbusters cover a reality.

As far as promo cards go, you'll find a couple. First up is a 1960s Batman reprint card from Cryptozoic done on Cryptonium card stock. There are six different so you might want to check out the NSU Card Talk message board to do some trading to finish your set. Rittenhouse Archives has provided a Game of Thrones Season 5 promo card as well. Thanks to both manufacturers for offering these cards.

So welcome to a new era for Non-Sport Update. And thanks for continuing to support this great magazine as it enters into an exciting future. We're glad you're here with us for the ride.

—Ryan Cracknell

WHO'S NEXT

Topps Goes All Timey Wimey with DOCTOR WHO Timeless

BY ALAN BIEGEL

Whirling like a dervish, The Doctor circles the six-sided TARDIS Control Panel, wildly pulling levers and furiously flipping switches like the madman with a box that he is. While the panel is designed to accommodate six pilots, The Doctor has been setting his Epsilon Coordinates solo in this dizzying fashion over for a thousand years—and that seems to suit him just fine!

For those unfamiliar with the good Doctor, he can be described as a human-looking, slightly-impish alien rogue who commandeers a stolen space/time vessel, called the TARDIS. He uses this cleverly-disguised-as-a-1950s-police-callbox to take on traveling companions, often while saving his favorite planet, Earth, from calamity or near-certain destruction. Oh, and he wears funny clothes, too.

Time After Time

This June, Topps will join everyone's favorite space/time traveler to take collectors on an epic journey across all of time with DOCTOR WHO Timeless Trading Cards. Following last year's highly successful premier edition, DOCTOR WHO Trading Cards, Timeless promises to go even deeper into the mythology surrounding this 54-year old British sci-fi TV series classic.

"Not to be too punny, but Doctor Who really is a timeless show," said Topps DW brand manager and head Whovian, Mark Von Ohlen. "That's actually how the name of our product came to be. We were all in a meeting thinking about what we wanted this next set to be thematically and someone said the property is just so timeless that it will outlive all of us. And there it was! What that really means is, regardless of the age of the viewer or the year in which the show was aired, Doctor Who resonates with fans very deeply and remains relevant in the culture. The strongest themes in the show—doing what's right vs. doing what's easy, examining yourself and your actions (i.e. The Doctor asks himself and others if he's a 'good man,') being brave in the face of danger, creating families out of friends and strangers, helping people, and ultimately saving the world—those are all stories people want to hear. Doctor Who does it better than most because there's always something unexpected, there's always something funny and there's always something emotionally devastating. And there isn't a 'golden age' of the show; every season is strong. Everyone has their favorite Doctor, companion, villain, or story arc but what's agreed upon by most fans is that the quality of the show is still great now and has been great throughout its history. People have their favorites but no one is really debating if it's still good; they're debating over which chunk of the 50+ year saga is the best.

The original Topps Doctor Who was primarily a character roster set with some storyline content.

DOCTOR WHO Timeless is pretty much all storyline," continued Von Ohlen. "The 100 base cards are episodic imagery recounting The Doctor's greatest adventures across time and they cover all 50+ years of the show. Some of the Doctor's best adventures are when he goes back in time and experiences events we've read about (like the volcano exploding in Pompeii) but then there's a special Doctor Who twist to the tale. We wanted to capture all those great moments."

Foiled Again

In addition to the colorful base, the set will be filled with parallel cards of various colors. Green Foils will be the easiest to collect, available at a ratio of one per pack. Blue Foils are next in difficulty, with each parallel numbered to only 99. Purple Foils follow, numbered to 50, Red is next at 25, while the toughest of all will be Gold Foils numbered to one.

Who Heads can also expect five time-related insert subsets to be peppered throughout this collection. Says Von Ohlen, "For the inserts we profiled Doctors, companions, friends and foes, aliens, and historical figures. The Doctors Across Time inserts discuss the time traveling adventures of all incarnations of The Doctor. Companions Across Time features the time travels of some of our favorite companions. Daleks Across Time profiles one of The Doctor's enemies—the Daleks—and how they have fought him across time. The Time Travelers insert takes a look at time travelers other than The Doctor, including the various incarnations of The Master and fan-favorite companion and wife of The Doctor, River Song. Finally, Historical Figures profiles some of our favorite real life people whom The Doctor has met along his time traveling adventures, including Winston Churchill, Queen Elizabeth and William Shakespeare.”

One of the hit elements to Topps' first Doctor Who release was the inclusion of TARDIS Patch Cards. With Timeless, the TARDIS gets an upgrade to Medallion level with 36 different TARDIS Medallion Cards to chase, available in Bronze, Silver, Gold, and Platinum Parallel varieties. Fans will want to seek out signed Medallions, including ones by Freema Agyeman, Noel Clarke, Frazer Hines, and Bernard Cribbins.

Costume Relic Cards will be an important part of this collection, too, including a hard-to-find Eleventh Doctor's Football Shirt. Sharp-eyed viewers will remember this very-British soccer jersey featuring, appropriately enough, The Doctor's number: 11. Ultra-rare signed Costume Relic Cards will feature the likes of River Song's sexy Black Dress, autographed by Alex Kingston herself.

Look for Autograph Cards to materialize in single, dual, and really rare triple varieties. Topps is traveling in time to bring hobbyists autographs from no less than six of The Doctor's incarnations, with David Tennant (10th), Tom Baker (4th), Peter Davison (5th), Colin Baker (6th), Paul McGann (8th), and first time signer, Sylvester McCoy (7th), all scheduled to participate. “Topps requested autographs from Christopher Eccleston (9th) for this set and the prior set but he unfortunately declined,” confided Von Ohlen.

“Overall, the set features over 80 autograph signers, more than double the number of actors we had in the first set and more than 50 of these are first-time signers [for us]. We continue to bring in new autograph signers [for the product] every week and will keep the fans at NSU updated.” Numerous other first timers, including Jenna Coleman, Arthur Darvill, David Morrissey, Anthony Stewart-Head, Georgia Moffett, Nicholas Briggs, Nick Frost, and Mark Gatiss will join the likes of Billie Piper, John Barrowman, Eve Myles, Gareth David-Lloyd, Derek Jacobi, Deborah Watling, and Eric Roberts to make DOCTOR WHO Timeless exactly that, a set that will live...forever. NSU

A Closer Look at Cryptozoic
Entertainment's Ghostbusters

BY RUDY PANUCCI

Last summer, Non-Sport Update brought readers an advanced preview of the then-upcoming Ghostbusters Trading Cards from Cryptozoic Entertainment. With so much buzz generated by the new Ghostbusters film reboot, the unprecedented opportunity to revisit Cryptozoic's creative process has arisen. Here is a more detailed look at Ghostbusters Trading Cards.

NSU checked in with Dekan Wheeler, Cryptozoic Entertainment's manager of marketing, and George Nadeau, Cryptozoic's manager of product development, to find out about all the last minute production details and inside information on how they created Ghostbusters Trading Cards, which is scheduled to be in stores this month.

Spirits are High

The excitement surrounding Ghostbusters is at a fever pitch. The new Ghostbusters movie is one of the most highly anticipated films of the year and is expected to be a huge blockbuster. Wheeler tells of the expectations for the new Ghostbusters movie, “Paul Feig is a proven director and his cast is made up of comedy veterans. From the trailers, it looks like he has taken into account the balance needed to satisfy longtime fans and excite new audiences.”

Sony Pictures is taking this opportunity to not only focus on the new movie, but to celebrate the entire Ghostbusters legacy. There will be a wealth of new toys and collectibles dedicated not only to the new Ghostbusters movie but also to the original film.

Wheeler explains Sony’s approach, “Nostalgia-based content has really come into the mainstream over the last 10-15 years, including other titles like DC’s Arrow and The Flash, The Powerpuff Girls and Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles. Each generation has new fans, joining those that have enjoyed the property from the first airing, or publication. In regards to what elevates Ghostbusters to this exclusive list, the films are a mix of classic comedy genius, great writing and science fiction. It hit all of those notes and hit them well.”

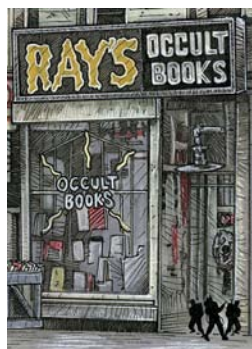

With a base set made up of images from the original film, Nadeau tells of the challenges of producing a card set based on a movie filmed over three decades ago, “Sony provided us with cleared images we could use in our product. They were extremely limited, so the decision-making process about image selection was simple; use them all. The scarcity of cleared screen images created the opportunity for us to commission original art for the chase sets. Naturally, we reached out to a couple of the principal artists who create the IDW Ghostbusters comic. As the story writer, Erik Burnham possesses a vast knowledge about Ghostbusters. We were pleased he was not only available to write the flavor text for the base set but also to create a nine-panel chase set, Sing For Your Specter.

Likewise, cover artist and penciler Dan Schoening has defined the look of the comic versions of so many of the Ghostbusters’ characters. We couldn’t be more pleased with his contribution to our set: a nine-card puzzle chase set, Tricks and Traps. Both Erik and Dan drew original hand-drawn sketch cards for the set, too. We’re sure collectors will enjoy hunting for them.”

Nadeau also went into detail about the other chase sets, “Character bios for seven of the main characters in the first movie are included in the hobby boxes. For our recently released Ghostbusters Board Game, we distributed an eighth character bio card as a promo card. It is numbered C8 and features Gozer. In this issue of Non-Sport Update, we have inserted a ninth card as a promo card, C9 Mr. Stay Puft. Sony provided all of the Behind The Scenes images. There are nine cards in the chase set.” There is also an absolutely stunning set of nine cards that graphically present quotes from the movie. Those were designed by Cryptozoic Entertainment’s Lead Production Designer, Nancy Valdez.

Among the autograph card signers are some big names, like Dan Aykroyd and Ernie Hudson, two of the original Ghostbusters who will also appear in the new movie. Nadeau offers some insight into the process of acquiring autograph card signers, “Autograph acquisition is always challenging. Communication, budget and timing can all be difficult factors to manage. One factor that made acquisition easier is the knowledge that the film is so popular we believed collectors would be delighted by autographs from virtually anyone who appeared on screen.”

Cryptozoic’s other insert cards for this Ghostbusters set are equally impressive. Nadeau says of the sketch cards, “About 150 artists created sketch cards for us. It’s among my favorite sketch card sets we’ve produced because of the variety of styles permitted by the licensor. Among the sketch card artists are: Vince Sunico, Joe Simko, Benjamin Glendenning, Kris Penix, Marcia Dye, Tim Proctor, Scott Blair, Mikey Babinski, Mitch Ballard, Dave Beaty, Mike James, Jeff Victor, Dan Bergren, Me-like Acar, and Hanie Mohd.”

Nadeau explained some of the difficulties Cryptozoic encountered producing the Totally Fabricated Slime Cards, “It was challenging to create the Totally Fabricated Slime cards. Basically, encasing liquids in a trading card is problematic on multiple levels, from testing to production, so we had to go back to the drawing board a few times. We think our solution looks great. We bet most Ghostbusters fans don’t know all of the different types of ectoplasm, but we hope they’ll want to collect them all.”

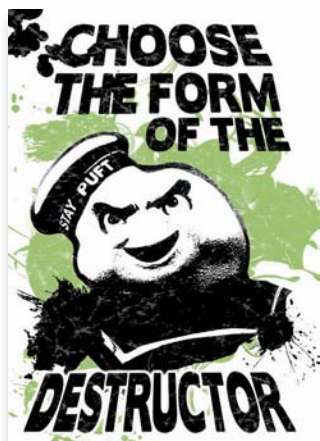

The Animation Cel Cards are another terrific insert in Ghostbusters Trading Cards. Nadeau explained the process of creating these cards, “We had access to thousands of original animation cels, much more than we could possibly use. That enabled us to cull through them for the ones that would best fit into our relatively small trading card frame. Each animation cel is original and unique—although many may look similar due to the traditional animation process—so we expect collectors will have fun discovering and sharing each one. Animation cel cards will be inserted 1:36 packs.” Wrapping it all up is an exclusive binder card which will be a replica patch for The Rookie, a Ghostbusters team character who appears in the first CZE GB board game and other sources.

Another Dose of Some Freaky Ghosts

Ghostbusters has such a beloved mythology in pop culture that NSU couldn’t pass up the chance to bring this more in-depth coverage of Ghostbusters Trading Cards as they hit store shelves. The original GB article can be found in the June/July 2015 issue of Non-Sport Update. And, for information on Ghostbusters the Board Game II, see the related April 11th post at nsu-magazine.com. Sometimes when you see a modified ‘59 Cadillac Ambulance flying down the street chasing a giant marshmallow man, you just have to do a double take and investigate further. NSU

Cards: Letters Online by Harris Toser

Reaction to the announcement of Beckett Media's purchase of Non-Sport Update was swift. But that's to be expected in today's 24-hour news cycle. It's been great to read many positive comments. We'll share some of the reaction in this issue's Cards Online column.

Reader Tim Matias wrote in to say, "I've enjoyed your magazine for years. Just wanted to send a quick note saying thanks for all the years of hard work and have really appreciated everything the magazine offers. I'm happy to say that your magazine is the only one I've had a letter published in (it was mostly about Arm & Hammer bird cards from the 30's), probably the late 90's. Just wanted to say thanks and share a few memories (my daughter, now 15, has grown up with access to your magazine and will occasionally steal it if one of her favorite shows is featured)."

Longtime NSU reader and Philly Non-Sports Card Show attendee Martin Cases wrote to say, "Anyone who is anyone in the non-sport card industry knows who The Tosers are and what they have done for the hobby. We all know that for a magazine to survive in today's online world is extremely difficult. Nonetheless, NSU has continued to excel through the years, and NSU continues to be as relevant, interesting and informative as ever. Your efforts continue to show in every single issue. Harris, what makes me the happiest is not that NSU will continue to live with the backing of a giant [Beckett Media], but that a giant recognized NSU as a giant in its own field. Best of all, knowing that NSU will continue to have you as a consultant means that the Tosers will still have a say in the shaping of the magazine, which ensures that NSU will continue to be what it is today. Please extend my congratulations to Roxanne and Marlin on this achievement."

NSU Card Talk member "Raven" wrote in to say, "I've just received the April/May issue. I am still reading through it, but as usual I started with Roxanne's column and then just finished with Harris' tribute to his parents. Going over their long list of accomplishments in the world of non-sport cards dating back to 1977, I don't know that you could call them anything else but the first family of non-sport cards."

Over on the forum itself, "BIL-LZEE" wrote, "Very happy for Roxanne, Marlin and Harris. NSU has been my fav mag for the last 26 yrs. I always look forward to the next issue. And that's saying a lot! Thanks for a job well done by all (The Tosers, Alan, Bill D, the writers, & staff/helpers too)." "Barobehere" posted "Hooray for the Toser family! I hope for the best in the upcoming years for you! I will miss my annual phone call to renew and check in with you personally! All the best to you"! Artist Ted Dastick Jr. posted "Congrats to Roxanne, Marlin, and Harris. It's been an honor having my artwork featured in the magazine under your reign; you've all been an absolute pleasure to work with. Best wishes to everyone, and it's great to see Harris will remain on board to keep the magazine going in the future."

"Catskilleagle" wrote, "Congratulations to the Toser family. Keeping any magazine running for a few years is an accomplishment but 26 years is a business miracle. I'm sure Beckett Media noticed that there continues to be a paying audience for non-sport news and comment even after all these years because NSU is still alive." Bill Mullins posted, "I am very proud to have been a modest part of the history of NSU. I was a writer in the early years, back when Chris Benjamin was editor (to give an idea of how long ago, I think my first article was about Desert Storm cards, in 1991). I wrote the first article on promo cards for the magazine as well." Australian Card Talk member "tangent" posted, "Good luck to Roxanne and Marlin in their (presumed) retirement, and to Harris and team for the future of NSU. The convention circuit and card fairs are pretty limited in Australia, so NSU and Card Talk have provided me with my connection to the wider hobby and other collectors for many years. Without these, I almost certainly would have given up collecting years ago."

On Beckett's blog, "Card Opinionator" added, "This is a great addition to the Beckett family. [The] Tosers have done a great job for years, and I'm sure the guys at Beckett will too. Very exciting for all involved."

Comments on Facebook were plentiful, including, "Good luck to all involved—it's certainly the end of an era (and the beginning of a new one!)" from UK CardCast presenter Paul Bines. The word "bittersweet" was used over and over again through the various comments. West Coast artist Leah Mangue wrote, "Congratulations to you and your family! I'm pleased you are staying on as consultant; it seems some assurance that the quality we've had up until now will continue! May the transition and continuation be smooth sailing!"

These are just a small portion of the comments submitted and posted. Thanks to everyone for the show of love. NSU

NEW & NOTEWORTHY

by Don Norton

Arts and Warcrafts

In 1994, Blizzard Entertainment released a multiplayer online role-playing game which would evolve into World of Warcraft, the world record holder as the most popular game of its kind, and the highest grossing video game of all time. Now the Orcs, dragons, elves, werewolves, and wizards of the world of Azeroth make their way to the big screen in a live action/CG film this June.

Warcraft promises non-stop excitement as the Orcs escape their dying world to invade the world of humans. Topps gives the film first class treatment with a super 180 card set. There will be 100 cards covering the storyline of the film, 18 Character cards, and 53 chase subset cards covering such subjects as Groups and Clans, Weapons and One-on-One Combat cards, which cover the best fights in the film. Hobby-only packs will contain nine Character Concept cards. Parallels will include Blue, Red, and Mage Light Blue numbered to 10, and Forge Gold numbered one of one.

Colin Walton, brand manager for many of Topps most popular non-sport lines, gave Non-Sport Update the run-down on all the cool inserts to be found in this set. Expect hits to be inserted two per Hobby box. Look for Commemorative Faction Flag Patch cards, with parallels. Autographs will be found in single, dual, and triple versions featuring cast and crew. Relic cards will include props, costumes and scenery. Autographed relics will also be available. Printing plates will be included; watch for autographed print plates. Finally, look for rare hand-drawn sketch cards by some of the hobby's top artists. Warcraft promises to be an exciting action film; watch for it to open on June 10. Topps Warcraft Trading Cards will give collectors a jump on the film when they appear May 11.

It's Only a Game...

Game of Thrones truly needs no introduction. The HBO series that premiered in 2011 has now grown to become the network's most successful show. With 6 currently airing, fans can only speculate how the series will end and who will be left standing.

Non-sport

card collectors have been most fortunate that Rittenhouse Archives has provided coverage of each season, along with a killer collection of hand-signed autograph cards from most major cast members. This June, Game of Thrones Season 5 Trading Cards continues the series.

The 100 card base set will cover the ten episodes of Season 5 and all the characters playing major roles in the show. Foil and Gold parallels of the base set will be inserted. Chase subsets will continue series from previous sets, like the nine card Quotable Game of Thrones, the 10 card Relationships series, and 20 Beautiful Death cards. The last two are also done in Gold parallel versions. New are 16 Mirrored Reflections cards.

Rittenhouse promises another outstanding slate of over 34 signers this time. Many returning signers will be back, including Peter Dinklage (Tyrion Lannister), Maisie Williams (Arya Stark), and Kit Harrington (Jon Snow). There will be over 20 new signers, including Jonathan Pryce (High Sparrow) and Keisha Castle-Hughes (Obara Sand). Look for autographs to be found two per box.

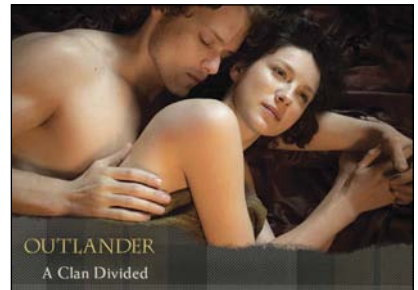

The big hits don't stop there. Randomly inserted will be two types of relic cards. Steve Charendoff, president of Rittenhouse Archives adds, "We have some cards based on the Night's Watch, and then some cards containing pieces of the Dragonglass, which will be more limited. The Dragonglass is especially cool, since it figures prominently as a weapon used against the White Walkers." The final hit will be the rare and much sought after hand-drawn sketch cards. Watch for Game of Thrones Season 5 cards starting June 8.

Somewhere in Time

The hit STARZ series, Outlander, is hard to pin down to one genre: historical fiction, romance, adventure, or science fiction. Actually, it's all of those, and more. Based on a series of novels by Diana Gabaldon, Outlander is the story of Claire Randall, a married World War II nurse who finds herself transported back to 1743 Scotland at the time of the Jacobite Rebellion. There she meets two men, Black Jack Randall, an ancestor and double for Frank, her husband in 1945, and Jamie Fraser, a leader in the doomed rebellion. Jamie marries Claire to save her from the sadistic Black Jack (is it bigamy if your first spouse is 200 years in the future?). With Season 2 currently being aired, there is much danger, excitement, and heartbreak facing Claire before she can return to her own time—if she returns at all!

Thankfully, Cryptozoic Entertainment decided this offbeat tale would certainly make a good set of cards, and George Nadeau, Manager of Product Development, provided NSU with details. The base set will consist of 72-cards and cover all the action of the first season. Three chase subsets will be inserted in packs. First is a nine card Character Bio set, then a nine card Quotes set. Most intriguing is a nine card Speak Outlander set, which Nadeau says, "Will include common Scottish words and phrases used in the series with a pronunciation key, definition and relevant image."

While Cryptozoic is not releasing names of signers at press time, expect autographs to be inserted one per box. Wardrobe cards will also be included as well as printing plates, but odds for these are TBA. A Collector's Binder will also be available, and include an exclusive Cryptomium card featuring the Thistle of Scotland. Look for Outlander Season One Trading Cards in early summer, 2016.

Cashing Out

by Dave Thompson

RELAX...this isn't the doom and gloom column; we're not at Defcon 1 (nah, just Defcon 3, and that's only because it's an election year, so inviting family over for the Memorial Day BBQ could get a little testy). I'm only suggesting someday other factors in your life may become more compelling to you than closets of shelves of binders of trading cards. Things like family, other hobbies, your job relocates to New Zealand...all could take precedence. Actually, the REAL reason? Your sweetie keeps mumbling: "When you go I'm takin' 'em to the Church Bazaar, and sellin' 'em all for one dollar. And then I'll have some space for family photos...maybe a nice fern." You knew it was a joke but that didn't make it hurt any less now, did it?

You put your passion into your collection. But you do know, nobody else has any emotional investment in it, right?...all the listing, all the trading, all the cash you laid out? Bad news, though this shouldn't be news to you at all, is that anybody who buys your whole collection does so because either the best cards in it or because of the incredible steal you had to give them to take 'em all. And more likely, BOTH of those reasons or fuhgeddaboudit.

Not saying you can't do it; all is not lost. But dismantling a collection is like weight loss: you didn't build it all in one day, why would you expect to lose it that fast? The good news is cashing out can be like collecting in reverse: you already have the skills, you just apply them on the other side of the ledger. And you pretty much know your next buyer...because you were once him. What are the chances Worthington J. Wannadeal III jumps in to purchase your whole thing with one big check? And, if he hasn't already found any of your stuff already, why would he suddenly want it at all?

I'd suggest parceling it out. Don't try to sell it all at the same time, and, like Bridge, don't lead with your biggest cards. Why? The more people who know you have something big to sell, the more an auction will bring you. So, the more buyers you meet selling your lesser items, the more people you can tell at that point, hey, you've a few 1967 Leaf Star Treks to sell, maybe in about a month. The more contacts you make, the more likely this tidbit reaches the right people. This is networking: it's not about making friends, it's about your friends passing the word along for you [see 101 Dalmations; Twilight Bark].

Don't second guess it; there is only one eBay. Bidders go there first when seeking a specific thing. Consignment auctions have regular customers who check to see what's interesting to bid on. A card show? Dealers bring things they know hardcore collectors want. Flea market? Bargain hunters seek boxes of commons to sift through, maybe get lucky. Garage sale? Hey, a quarter apiece, can't go wrong. Each of these can be ideal for some part of your collection, but not all. Again, every customer you encounter should be reminded to look for you at the bigger venue, for better stuff. Still, each of these come with some cost to you: your time, your presentation (booth, display, building a common card selection), or fees. It's up to you to factor that into your profit and to decide if the result was worth the outlay. The same goes for PVC grading. Sure, condition is a major factor of selling, but only you can determine if the label on that sleeve is siphoning off too much of your extra profit, as well as consigning at a card shop.

Cards from 1990 or later? Keep a "Quarter apiece" box handy for your next garage sale (or your friends or neighbor's); just keep putting it out there as long as you see some selling. But once you've found what won't, they're still costing you time and wasted effort. Consider stepping on the lid, dropping them in, lid closes. Walk away, and don't look back; they're Oscar the Grouch's problem now!

If you still want to try giving them a good home, grab some and throw them into the future. Offer most to a young family member or to a friend's kid. Maybe hold some back for birthdays or Christmases down the road. Pitch it to them as a head start on a great hobby and downplay the skills-learning and dollar value part. Card fans learn, "The value of a collectible is no more or no less than the price you can get somebody to pay for it." I say, "If you like cards, you should collect cards. If you like money, then you should collect money." NSU

CIVIL WAR

CAPTAIN AMERICA

COMES TO THE MARVEL UNIVERSE

BY CHARLIE NOVINSKIE

This May, moviegoers will see hero versus hero slug it out on the big screen as governments of the world retaliate for the unacceptable body count and billions in person property damage associated with superheroes battling it out. Forget the fact that they've banded together and the battle cry of "Avengers Assemble" has gone out countless times in the defense of humanity and this planet.

Civil War has come to roost and the Marvel superheroes are going to pay a costly price. In an epic struggle no one saw coming, Captain America goes up against the mechanized power of Iron Man and the rest of the costumed heroes who are about to be forced into taking sides. The movie is based upon the concept of the 2006-2007 Civil War comic book storyline—with some new twists designed to update it. One interesting bit of comic book nostalgia is this movie marks the first appearance of T'Challa, the Black Panther, 50 years after he was created by Stan Lee and Jack Kirby and first appeared in the Fantastic Four #52 (July 1966). Whose side he will be on remains to be seen.

Happy Anniversary, America

In order to capture this huge event, Upper Deck's trading card series is designed to seize the excitement, look, and feel of the film. According to Mark Shaunessy, Upper Deck's entertainment marketing manager, "This set will be complete with inserts that represent the divide between superheroes... some themed for Captain America's Team, some themed for Iron Man's Team. Scheduled for a May release, shortly after the premiere of the movie, this set will include an impressive array of character signings, including Cap himself, Chris Evans, plus Emily VanCamp, Jeremy Renner, Sebastian Stan and Frank Grillo.

Another exciting aspect of this blockbuster film will be the first appearance of Spider-Man in the Marvel Cinematic Universe. When NSU asked Mark if the set would have any Spidey cards in it, he remarked, "Unfortunately, there will be no movie images of Spider-Man in this set. As you probably know, Spider-Man's inclusion in this movie was not officially announced until very recently. As such, images were not available at the time of card production. But, it is possible that you'll see Spider-Man on a sketch card or two!"

The base set will consist of 60 cards featuring images from the film, in order of appearance, with descriptions of the scene on the backs. While the cards will tell a story, it won't tell the whole story as to not spoil the surprise events in the movie. The set will also contain authentic movie memorabilia cards (two per box), some of which will include actor-worn costume material! There will also be original art, plus one-of-one sketch cards featuring all the characters in the Civil War saga.

A special treat for long time Captain America fans will be cards commemorating Cap's 75th anniversary, capturing the 75 most memorable moments in Cap's illustrious career. Some of these cards will parallel to a comic creator, featuring hand-signed autographed versions! Also new to this set is an extremely rare Premium PETG base parallel insert card, numbered to one.

One autograph, sketch, or premium insert card will be available per box. These sought-after cards have a plastic substrate instead of paper. Every area that doesn't get ink is clear—allowing collectors to see through the card. According to Mark, "When we make a base parallel we often include the character image but drop out elements of the background (as we did with our Thor Dark World set). Something new for this set is that we limited the PETG cards to an edition of one. Very rare, special cards."

Hobby cards will have a pair of memorabilia cards to go along with an autograph, sketch card, or other premium-style insert. As far as parallel cards, there will be a Blue Foil parallel, the most common, followed by Red Foil (/100), Green Foil (/10) and the aforementioned PETG Acetate cards that are all one of a kind. There will be a pair of Memorabilia cards in each Hobby box and relic cards containing swatches of actor-worn costume material will come in Dual, Triple, and Quad relics.

A nice aspect to the Autograph cards, given the nature of the Civil War theme, is there are two sets of dual autograph cards featuring characters from Team Captain America and Team Iron Man. The sketch cards will also carry over the theme with Team Cap and Team Shellhead sketch cards.

Basic insert cards and their breakdowns are as follows: Team Captain America Bios (1:6 packs) and Team Iron Man Bios (1:5). Behind the Scenes (1:3) and Concept Art (1:4) providing fans with a view from behind the camera. The insert list rounds out with Tension Builders (1:9). If purchasing a Hobby box, expect to find the following: Autographs, Sketch Cards, and Premium Inserts: one, Memorabilia Cards: two, Inserts: 10, and Parallels: 10.

Cap It Off

The intrigue and mystery of Captain America: Civil War will play itself out on screens across the world as Upper Deck's card set will preserve the memory of some of the most memorable battles between superheroes to ever take place on the big screen. And, in addition to the first appearances of Spider-Man and Black Panther, moviegoers will see the first appearance of bad guy Baron Zemo. No matter which side of the Civil War you end up on, there's no way you can lose with this incredible set of Captain America: Civil War Trading Cards. NSU

Cryptozoic Entertainment Takes On Arrested Development

BY Rudy Panucci

this summer, Cryptozoic Entertainment brings the cult comedy television series, Arrested Development, to the world of trading cards with an extensive set that spans all four seasons of the cult comedy classic. Arrested Development is a unique program in that it was critically acclaimed and showered with awards but never managed to turn all of that positive attention into anything approaching decent ratings or commercial success.

The funny thing about that situation is the fate of the show mirrored the Bluth Family, a once-wealthy clan whose misadventures were the central focus of Arrested Development. The show revolves around the family real estate business, The Bluth Company, which, in the first episode, has its assets seized by the government due to fraud and gross financial shenanigans by the family patriarch and CEO, George Bluth Sr. (Jeffrey Tambor). Suddenly, his spoiled rotten grown children and alcoholic wife are left penniless and have to move into their last remaining asset, one of George Sr.'s poorly-constructed model homes. Arrested Development chronicles their attempts to keep the company going and regain their previous ludicrously-extravagant lifestyle while George Sr. sits in a federal prison.

"Dysfunctional" is not a strong enough word to describe the Bluth Family. Michael Bluth (Jason Bateman) is probably the only character you'd want to spend more than five minutes with in real life. A widowed single father, he's the level-headed conscience of the family who struggles to keep his siblings and parents out of trouble. Thwarting his efforts are his parents and siblings who are relentless in their devotion to materialism, selfishness, and manipulative ways.

Micheal's mother, Lucille (Jessica Walters), is conning, manipulative, usually inebriated, and keeps her youngest son, Buster (Tony Hale), under her thumb. This has turned him into an inept and socially awkward introvert, ill-equipped to deal with everyday life. Micheal's older brother, G.O.B. (George Oscar Bluth, Jr. but pronounced "Job" and portrayed by Will Arnett), is an incompetent magician who's had a string of failed business schemes. Micheal's twin sister, Lindsay (Portia de Rossi), is shallow and immature, and is married to Tobias (David Cross), a discredited psychiatrist with more problems than we have space to cover here.

With a crack writing staff and an amazing cast (including dozens of A-list comedic actors in supporting and recurring roles), Arrested Development quickly began racking up accolades and awards, but not ratings, shortly after its 2003 debut. Some people felt the show was too smart for the general public. After three seasons on Fox, Arrested

Development was canceled in 2006. Due to its fiercely loyal cult fan base, the show was revived for fifteen episodes by Netflix in 2013, and a fifth season is expected this year.

Taking a Banana Stand

Cryptozoic Entertainment is now tasked with the duty of translating the first four seasons of Arrested Development into a trading card set. George Nadeau, Manager of Product Development for Cryptozoic, explains the cult appeal of the show, "Arrested Development is one of my personal all-time favorite shows. Even though I've seen every episode countless times, I continue to catch new callbacks each time I watch it again. It really rewards repeat viewers, so I was happy to have the opportunity to 'work' on this set."

This product will be a loving and twisted valentine to Arrested Development. The base set will feature episodic images and some of the best quotes from across all four seasons. As we go to press, the size hasn't been nailed down but the base set will almost certainly consist of at least 72 cards. Nadeau comments on the process of selecting what will be on the cards, "We referenced as many of the best moments as possible, but it was an impossible task. The writing is so dense, with jokes doled out rapid-fire, that we couldn't come close to fitting everything we wanted into the trading card set."

In addition to the base, Arrested Development Trading Cards will also include several chase and special insert cards. A nine-card ID Card chase set features whimsical business cards and other ID cards for some of the series' memorable characters. A six-card Cryptonium Symbols chase features notable props and other Easter Eggs that show up throughout the run of the show.

Confirmed autograph signers are Jamie Kennedy as himself, Allan Wasserman as Herb Zuckerkorn and Dave Thomas as Trevor. However, with a huge cast and plenty of production time left as we go to press, Nadeau says, "We expect to include more than two dozen signers."

There will be wardrobe and prop cards, including Buster's prosthetic hand and Tobias's cut-offs. These will be very rare, as Nadeau explains, "During the course of the series, Buster had several prosthetic hands. We have one of them. It's basically a plastic glove which means once we cut it up it will literally yield only a handful of prop cards. Good luck finding these very rare cards."

Cryptozoic Entertainment is famous for their Totally Fabricated Cards, which manage to both create a wonderful new collectible and poke fun at the whole idea of insert cards at the same time. For Arrested Development, this special insert set will take its inspiration from an infamous quote from the series,

"There's always money in the banana stand." Taken from the episode. "Top Banana," the line is spoken by George Sr. to Michael during a prison visit. Fans of the series know how that plays out, and for those who are not yet fans this set may convert them.

A sketch card chase subset is also in the works, but the artist's names are being kept under wraps for now.

Fans can also expect randomly inserted printing plates and a foil board base set variant called Million F*cking Diamonds, inspired by another memorable quote from the show. Collectors can also expect a one-inch binder with an exclusive card so they can hoard their Arrested Development Trading Cards collection and hide it from the IRS.

Arrested Product Development

Nadeau went into detail about the difficulty of compiling a card set like this for a property that originally aired so long ago, "As a licensed product, we work closely with the studio throughout product development. The main challenge with this production is the first three seasons of the series aired a decade ago; wardrobe and prop assets were difficult to come by. Fortunately, the roster of talent that created the show created a fantastic potential autograph signer list, so those are the hits we focused on and hope collectors will enjoy."

It's pretty clear Cryptozoic Entertainment has certainly succeeded with their Arrested Development Trading Cards set, unlike the Bluth Family themselves, who don't seem to be able to see any of their schemes come to fruition. NSU

Promo Column: I Still Want to Believe

by Bill DeFranzo

Did you catch Season 10 of The X-Files? What show has a new season after being off the air for 14 years or so? It was only six episodes but it was classic X-Files. The first and sixth episodes were parts one and two of a continuing storyline that picked up where the series left off. We got some idea of what might have happened during the interim years. We learned a little bit about William, Mulder and Scully's son. We may even have an answer to the alien question. I say "maybe" because we were led down the wrong path for nine years. The truth is out there but is this it? Trust no one. It left us with a cataclysmic cliffhanger ending and me, at least, craving more. So much so I had to fire up Netflix and begin watching the series from the beginning. I never watched reruns but I saw every episode when it aired. My memory had eroded the detail of the episodes so re-watching was surprisingly exciting. I've only watched the first 18 episodes so far but they tied in so well with Season 10; everything from the design of the triangular spacecraft to Episode #17's explicit explanation by Deep Throat as to why the alien was shot in cold blood after the Roswell crash during the opening scenes. What does this have to do with promos?

Am I the only one to have pulled out their X-Files card collections? It was time! I never did pick up a set of the foil parallel cards for Season 3. Oh well. I noticed my promos for X-Files told most of the story surrounding the evolution in trading card collecting. Here is a little trivia. The very first X-Files promo from Topps, the P1, did not promo the trading card series. It was produced by Topps Comics for their comic book line. However, no respectable card collection should be without one. It was followed by P2 through P6. All of which promote The X-Files Season 1 trading cards. The P1 was only distributed at one comic convention in New York City, probably the Big Apple Con. It was the cover promo in a polypack of several promos. Barbi Twins P1 and Duckman P1 were a couple of others in the pack. In 1995 the P1 would sell easily for $25.00 because of its narrow distribution but I would not recommend buying it for that now.

Season 1 saw a collectors' binder complete with a #0 promo card. The back of the card is identical to that of the regular promos. Don't confuse it with the #0 promo from Season 2 which was inserted in The X-Files Magazine issue #1. True to form for 1995, Topps produced a half-panel promo for each of the first two seasons. Panels are harder to come by at shows these days in top condition because of their size and resulting manhandling over the past 20 years.

Fast forward to 2001.

Topps had produced card series for only the first three seasons and Inkworks now owned the rights to the franchise. To play catchup, the next two series were entitled Seasons 4&5 and Seasons 6&7. We are now in the era of box toppers and case loaders. One of each can be found in Seasons 4&5 but with a nice twist. They promote Seasons 6&7. For Seasons 6&7 the ante was upped a bit with the inclusion of three box toppers plus one case loader promoting Season 8.

Ever since Seasons 4&5 we were on a constant vigil of the Inkworks website waiting for information on how to obtain the next web-only promo. In this case it was number Pi, where the 'i' is dotted with a big ink splatter like the 'i' in the Inkworks logo. Seasons 6&7 rang in an explicit international era with promo X67-UK. The prior series had an XM-1 promo exclusive to distribution by Cards, Inc. in the UK. In full disclosure, Topps produced promos for Cards, Inc. as well back in 1998 but only for the movie series, Fight the Future. These were a mixture of my initial thoughts as I reviewed my collection. It would be a challenge but very doable to begin a collection of The X-Files promos now. To make it more of a challenge, add a price ceiling on each item to your scope.

Finally, I'd like to bid a very warm welcome to Beckett Media. I have to believe their long-term objective is to grow the readership of this fine magazine. More readers could mean more content and a few more pages in the Price Guide. As such, I expect some changes over time but whatever they may be, assume they are for the better. Then we all win. NSU

STILL ATTACKING

More than 50 years after its controversial release, the 1962 Topps-produced Mars Attacks set continues to disgust and delight

BY RYAN CRACKNELL

Growing up in the 1960s, kids lived in a world blanketed by fear. World War II was still part of recent history. From there grew the specter of nuclear weapons and the distrust of the Cold War. As the Doomsday Clock ticked ever closer to midnight, the angst only grew more real.

Enter a set of trading cards that preyed off that fear, offering a bloody look at a world where invasion and decimation weren't possibilities. They were reality. Only, the invaders weren't from the U.S.S.R. or any other Communist country that was the collective villain in the West. It was an attack from space.

The 1962 Mars Attacks release has the distinction of being one of the most beloved and reviled sets of cards of all-time. It's a classic set that in the decades since its release has transcended the hobby and become a much bigger part of pop culture.

THE INVASION BEGINS

The idea behind Mars Attacks began with Len Brown and Woody Gelman. The two set out to create a modern spin on the H.G. Wells classic, War of the Worlds. They began to flesh out their ideas by looking back at old sci-fi comics and films, most notably This Island Earth. The movie would serve as a major inspiration for the big-brained look of the Martian invaders.

From there, the ideas were passed on first to Wally Wood and then Bob Powell to create sketches and layouts of what would become the series. But breathing life into Mars Attacks ultimately fell to the paintbrush of Norm Saunders.

Not only one of the most accomplished pulp cover painters of his era, Saunders also holds a major place in the hobby having worked on such classic products as 1961 Civil War News, three different 1966 Batman sets and 1965 Battle.

"Norm Saunders is the Da Vinci of trading card artists, and Mars Attacks is his masterpiece," says Simeon Lipman, a New York-based pop culture specialist and appraiser. "Saunders' pulpy and vibrant style is so incredibly effective in this set. It really brings the cards to life. Add to that the air of controversy and genuine scarcity of the cards themselves, and you have a timeless collectible."

STILL ATTACKING

DESTROYING DOGS AND BURNING FLESH

One look at any of the original Mars Attacks cards is bound to leave an impression. The visuals take no prisoners, offering no shortage of striking images filled with blood, horror and gore.

Nothing is safe, not even dogs as evidenced by one of the most memorable cards in the set where a boy watches on in terror as his beloved canine companion is zapped by an emotionless extra-terrestrial.

Other cards show flaming carcasses, skeletons, blood and exposed flesh. American and global landmarks are left in shambles.

There's even some implied sexual innuendo on a couple of memorable cards like "Prized Captive" and "Beast and the Beauty." And that's after both of these cards were redone to tone down and cover up much of the skin Saunders originally included.

Over the course of 55 cards, Mars Attacks charts a story of invasion, terror, and ultimately, survival. It works aliens, giant bugs, robots and human ingenuity in a short amount of time, telling a complete story with not only images but extensive write-ups as well.

A HANDFUL OF CARDS WERE REDONE TO TONE DOWN NOT ONLY THE VIOLENCE OF THE CARDS BUT THE SEXUAL OVERTONES THAT CAME WITH HOW WOMEN WERE PORTRAYED.

"Certainly the set's themes were dictated by the times," Lipman says. "The fear of invasion and annihilation was a real threat in 1962. The Cuban Missile Crisis took place in October of that year so the themes and imagery depicted on the cards certainly struck a nerve."

CONTROVERSY FROM OUTER SPACE

As it came time to release the set, Topps knew that Mars Attacks - or "Attack from Space" as it was originally called - was likely to resonate. And it wasn't just going to be with the children they were targeting.

In a precursor to help fend off the potential wrath of moms, teachers and other adults of influence, a handful of cards were redone to tone down not only the violence of the cards but the sexual overtones that came with how women were portrayed.

THE 1962 MARS ATTACKS RELEASE HAS THE DISTINCTION OF BEING ONE OF THE MOST BELOVED AND REVELED SETS OF CARDS OF ALL-TIME. IT'S A CLASSIC SET THAT IN THE DECADES SINCE ITS RELEASE HAS TRANSCENDED THE HOBBY AND BECOME A MUCH BIGGER PART OF POP CULTURE.

You won't find Topps' name anywhere on the original Mars Attacks cards. This was an intentional decision to help protect the company's corporate image. Rather than releasing it under its own name, Topps adopted a dummy corporation of Bubbles Inc. for the product.

This wasn't the first time Topps used the name. Other products include 1956 Elvis Presley and 1959 "You'll Die Laughing/Funny Monsters."

But where these were sets covering pop culture, Mars Attacks struck a nerve that was ultimately more controversial than Presley's swinging hips.

Mars Attacks received plenty of attention from newspapers for its gore.

And while Topps appeared ready for it, it ultimately cut the series short after lawyers and other officials started kicking up a stink.

But that didn't stop kids from looking back on the set fondly. And those kids grew up.

PRIZED CAPTIVES

Today, original Mars Attacks cards bring plenty of attention. Those who originally busted packs bought at corner stores became adults and the cards became collection cornerstones. No matter the condition, these cards command significant attention.

"Mars Attacks cards are still very relevant and collectible," says Lipman. "Being scarce to begin with, high-grade cards are extremely difficult find 55 years later, as evidenced by graded examples selling well into the four figures."

Despite having only 55 cards, complete sets are difficult to come by. The controversy the set brought cut the print runs short. Add to that the natural aging of the set and its big appeal today and it's not hard to see why prices are as strong as they are.

It's not only the cards that command big prices. In 2011, Robert Edward Auctions sold a lot with an empty box and a wrapper for more than $11,000. Initial estimates then were around $2,000.

A prototype version of the box with the early name of "Attack from Space" also exists.

Times have changed and today Mars Attacks isn't as controversial.

In fact, many of the modern incarnations have more of a feeling of satire. This culminated in 1996 with the release of Tim Burton's blockbuster film of the same name, starring Jack Nicholson.

On the one hand, it justified Mars Attacks' place in pop culture history.

On the other, the movie's more comedic and over-the-top approach took away a lot of the fear and threat that made the set so iconic in the first place.

In the years since, the franchise has continued with new sets of trading cards, comics and other collectibles. And while those have continued the legacy of Mars Attacks, they still don't have anything on the original invasion. NSU

REMEMBER THEN

STARS OF OLD SHINE IN CLASSIC COLLECTION

BY ARNOLD BAILEY

There are cards produced in the 1950s that allow collectors to add images of people like Joe Yule, Shirley Schrift, Reginald Jones, and Margaret Middleton to their non-sport collections. Not interested? Who are those people? Well, those people were big time movie stars back then, that's who. And it's likely collectors will be very interested when they learn those same people are better known as Mickey Rooney, Shelley Winters, Ray Milland, and Yvonne DeCarlo. They're all Academy Award winners.

The cards were produced about six decades ago by the Exhibit Supply Co. That's when the Chicago-based company was the nation's largest maker of coin operated penny arcade games. Exhibit Supply also produced a variety of cards dispensed by some of the firm's machines, usually for just one-cent apiece. Then and Now is what these cards are appropriately called. Card fronts feature two black and white photos, though there have been references in the hobby of pink-tone and color versions. The "Then" photo is on the left and the "Now" on the right. Slightly larger, the "Nows" are photos of movie stars as they appeared when the cards were made. The "Thens" are baby, infant or childhood photos of the same stars.

The series is complete at 32 cards, and uncut sheets of the full set have surfaced in the hobby market. Of the 32 movie stars in the series, 23 changed their names on their way to stardom. For 14 of the stars, the name change was total, both given name and surname. This group includes the aforementioned Joe Yule who became Mickey Rooney, Shirley Schrift changed to Shelley Winters, Reginald Jones became better known as Ray Milland, and Margaret Middleton evolved into Yvonne DeCarlo.

For six celebrities, only the first or given names were changed, like Eldred Peck who became Gregory Peck or Gretchen Young who turned into Loretta Young. For three, only the surname was changed, like Doris Kappelhoff who transformed into Doris Day.

The cards measure 3 1/8" x 5 3/8" or about the size of standard postcards. In fact, some other Exhibit Supply cards were designed to be used as postcards, with spaces for messages, addresses and, of course, postage stamps on the reverse. Most Exhibit Supply cards are black and white, though a few are in subtle color tints like pink or blue. A very few are in full color.

CHANGING THE THEN

The Then and Now cards are easily identified because the series' name is in a banner-like frame at the top left. The star's stage or show biz name is in script resembling a signature along the bottom, though the print is small and sometimes difficult to read. If there had been a name change, the cards offer no hint of it although mentioning it would have added an interesting, and appropriate, touch to the “Then” part of the presentation.

Typically with Exhibit cards there’s a “Printed in U.S.A.” mark in small print on the front at the bottom right. Also typical are the blank backs. Only a few of the company’s non-sport cards have info on the back, and just one series of its sports cards, called “stat-backs,” have the pictured player’s statistical information.

It appears Exhibit Supply produced the Then and Now cards over three or four years in the early 1950s. They’re not dated, but a few pieces of the original artwork and proof sheets have made it to the hobby market bearing a 1953 date.

The then and now concept wasn’t new, to be sure. Before and after comparisons have been used in many ways. Local newspapers like to present then and now photos of couples celebrating 50 years of marriage. In most cases, the “now” bears little resemblance to the “then” and indicates human aging isn’t always a pretty sight.

And school reunion planners delight in creating event name tags that feature the senior class yearbook photos of their classmates (taken when the guys still had hair and the gals had just one set of chins). It’s sort of like the hit song “You Must Have Been A Beautiful Baby,” with the next line, “But Baby Look At You Now.” That was a big hit, of course, for Harry Lillis Crosby, better known as “Bing” on his Then and Now card.

THEN AND NOW REDUX

The Exhibit Supply Company isn’t the only card manufacturer to try the then and now approach. Topps used baby and childhood pictures of a few movie stars in its 1953 Who-Z-At-Stars series and again in the early 1970s with some of its baseball and football card sets.

Upper Deck tried a variation on the then and now theme with its 2014 Marvel cards which, according to the company, “give a good look at the differences between the classic characters and the characters as they look today.” Sort of the theory of evolution gone wild.

The Exhibit & Supply Then and Now cards do teach a couple of important lessons. First, not all babies are cute. Some do resemble Winston Churchill, minus cigar and derby hat. Winnie was described in many ways but never as cute.

Second, it’s almost impossible to match most of the Then and Now set’s 32 movie stars, or most anybody’s for that matter, to their baby/childhood photos. The exception is Mickey Rooney whose face always seemed to resemble little Joe Yule, even after 300 movies and eight marriages in a career spanning nine decades.

Humphrey Bogart’s parents certainly had no inkling their cute three-year-old would grow into a classic tough guy image. And no one could have predicted little Yvonne DeCarlo, photographed as a cute little girl with bangs and white cap, would someday become more recognizable as Lily Munster. NSU

NON-SPORT UPDATE PRICE GUIDE

What You will Find in the Price Guide

Starting with the Feb/Mar issue of Non-Sport Update (Vol. 19 #1), we found it necessary to list pre-2004 cards from A-L in one issue and M-Z in the following issue because we needed room for the massive listings for some of the new sets. We are happy to report the Price Guide is back together again but the only way we could do this was to remove sets not showing any price changes since the end of 2003. Information for these sets can be found in The Encyclopedia of Non-Sport and Entertainment Cards published in early 2007. Information for promo cards not included in set listings may be found in the Promo Card Encyclopedia published in 2008. Both of these books may be ordered from Non-Sport Update (see the ad elsewhere in this issue or visit nonsportupdate.com/nsu\_store.htm).

Purpose of the Price Guide

The goal of this guide is to provide the reader with fair and accurate values for the sets listed. Dealer overhead is NOT factored into these price lists. There is no fixed price on a card item. Prices vary dealer to dealer. The listings are mostly for U.S. sets and do not include graded cards.

What the Listings Mean

Set name, issuing company, date of issue (if known), number of cards, stickers, and number of cards in bonus sets are listed. When known, ratio for bonus cards. An increment of approximately 25 percent is often factored into the set price for all pre-1970 sets. Pre-1990 sets have per-card prices for cards and/or stickers and a complete set price. Post-1990 sets have base set prices and set prices for each bonus set. It is not usually possible to have a price for a complete set, including all bonus cards. "Factory set," "Set only," and "Boxed set" implies sets were sold as complete sets and not in packs. The symbol ‡ means there is an album or binder for the set.

When available, retail prices for unopened boxes are included, as well as older pack prices.

In the new series section, the issue number listed in the set line indicates in which issue of Non-Sport Update our original expanded listing appeared.

For tobacco cards, "19C" refers to cards issued between 1879 and 1899, "20C" refers to cards issued between 1900-1913. To assist collectors with identification, the Standard Catalog System™ reference numbers for all tobacco issues is printed in brackets {N2} or {T59}.

Values and Conditions

The prices listed in this guide refer to items in "excellent" condition for the years 1879-1979 and in "mint" condition for 1980 through current. An "excellent" card is well-centered, has square corners, good color, and has NO creases or missing pieces. A "mint" card has no visible defects and appears to be new. The first and last cards of most pre-1980 cards have a premium value. Unmarked checklist cards are worth considerably more than a regular card. Some pre-1970 sets may have extra-value cards due to appearing less than other cards on original printing sheets or because of higher demand.

Price Changes

Prices are tracked until a total of three prices have been found. An average of the three prices is then taken and a plus sign (+) indicates the price has risen, while a minus sign (-) indicates the price has gone down. We throw out absurdly high/low prices before calculating the average.

Disclaimer

This price guide is not an offer to buy or sell cards, nor does it imply or guarantee that advertisers in Non-Sport Update are obligated to sell at the prices listed herein. The sole purpose of this price guide is educational.

300th ISSUE

of The Wrapper

In 1978 Les Davis put out a two-page newsletter for sport and non-sport wrapper collectors. Before being laughed off the planet, "The Wrapper" was hijacked by hundreds of non-sport card collectors who had finally found someone dumb enough to publish a little magazine that was close to their needs.

Thirty-eight years later "The Wrapper" still survives, moving from typewriters and Elmer's Glue to Word Docs and Paypal. Issue #300 is finally here, proving that the little engine that could...did.
